

Course No. and Title	24. CULTURAL DIVERSITY COMPETENCY FOR COLLEGE FACULTY
Best For	College faculty, staff and administrators
Description	Today’s colleges and university campuses are increasingly multicultural in both the composition of the U.S. different ethnic groups and in the diversity of international student population. Faculties, some of whom are newly experiencing this phenomenon are faced with the challenges of moving from the “one-size-fits-all” mindset that favor assimilation to one that values differences and the development of multicultural flexibility in instructional delivery, interactions with students and other colleagues. This session will help participants develop an understanding of their cultural biases, fears and stereotypes, and how they affect their perceptions and interactions with each other on campus.
